

12 international brokers to launch RoboX since its official launch last June

The smart trading machine is winning the attention of traders worldwide as RoboX continues to widen its global presence

Sep 13, 2016 – Tradency, a global technology company focusing on product development and advanced services to financial institutions and the pioneer of the mirroring concept, continues to grow its business. During the last 3 months, since RoboX was first introduced to the market, Tradency had partnered with 12 new worldwide brokers in order to offer RoboX services to their retail clients.

To list a few of the new RoboX brokers: FXDD, Trade 24, Best Leader Global Market NZ Ltd. and Fullerton Markets. Originating from Europe, Hong-Kong, New Zealand and the UK, RoboX is winning the attention of the global FX community.

Tradency is present in the on-line trading arena since early 2005, totaling with more than 2 million users. The company is providing market leading customers with robust and scalable solutions to support their growing client base. RoboX is Tradency's latest innovation, a proprietary learning machine which builds a portfolio of strategies according to the most suitable strategies for current market conditions. Oz Golan, Tradency's VP Sales "RoboX takes Tradency's +1m strategies database and cleverly dissects and analyses their performance so that it can construct specific smart packages that suits the individual trader in accordance to the ever changing market conditions. We are extremely pleased to see that brokers are putting their faith and trust in our innovative technology".
